BUILDING FOR MINISTRIES

Newsletter

Oct. 2010

Project Highlight

The Dayton Avenue Baptist Church project completed a few years ago was one of the largest church projects completed thus far by Bruns General Contracting.

This project features a magnificent 18,000 square foot multi-purpose facility, a huge 500 seat auditorium, a bright and friendly gymnasium, a large entry gathering area, a full service kitchen and an abundance of additional education space. The church was designed with future growth in mind for the Dayton Avenue Baptist Church. The Dayton Avenue Baptist Church is located at 1121 Dayton Avenue, Xenia, Ohio.

"Bruns General Contracting helped us through a difficult time as we began the process of re-building our church after it was destroyed by a tornado. The project was completed within budget, and on time and the people at Bruns were extremely good to work with."

- Charles Young, Dayton Avenue Trustee

Focus on Bill Davis

Bill Davis is the Market Leader for the Building for Ministries Division of Bruns General Contracting. Bill joined the company in 2009, bringing with him an extensive knowledge of construction, design and architecture. He began his career as a draftsman and has worked for architects, engineers, and general contractors in design, project management, and estimating on construction projects of different types and sizes for 27 years.

Bill visits religious facilities on a daily basis to assist with anything from small projects to master planning and construction. Bill enjoys this work greatly, as he is quite active in his own church. Bill finds his profession extremely rewarding as he has the unique opportunity to blend his professional experience with his religious conviction. In this role Bill spends most of his time working with the building committees, supporting their needs and requests with Bruns General Contracting's diverse Building for Ministries design and construction team. This allows the religious facility to develop the optimal plan that supports the growth and vision of the congregation. Bill is grateful to have a professional role that is so rewarding.

"Each religious facility project is unique. The development phase of the project may take many months, before the physical construction begins. When groundbreaking day arrives, it is cause for celebration."

- Bill Davis, Market Leader, Building for Ministries

"Working with religious facilities on new construction requires a great deal of construction experience, patience and religious committment. Bill is the perfect combination of all three. We are lucky to have him."

- Mike Caughell, Executive Vice President & GM, Bruns General Contracting
